Instructions

1. Choose your body from four different insect designs

2. Thread the wax-coated string through the hole in the head.

The wax coating enables you to come up with your own awesome antennae designs. In order to give it a curl or other design, use a pencil or other straight object and wrap the string around it. (Figure 1)

3. Pick your set of color diffusing wings and design. Use watercolor paint, washable markers, or food coloring. Spray water onto the wings to watch the colors separate and mix, creating cool effects. Side note: If you're using food coloring or watercolor paint, lightly wet the wings before coloring. If using marker, color before wetting the wings.

4. After the color diffusing wings have dried, now it's time to thread them through the body. Fold the wings like you would fold a fan in order to get it small enough to fit. (Figure 2, 3, 4) Once through, begin to spread the wings back out, taking care not to tear them.

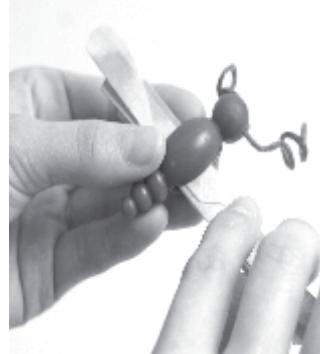

5. Enjoy your newly-made insects!

- Glue a small magnet on the back of your bug for a decorative flair to your refrigerator
- Tie a string around your bug for a great insect-themed fashion accessory
- Attach to a hair clip or hair bow to add a splash of color
- Glue a stick pin or safety pin to it to proudly wear your creations on your chest
